Upcoming May Performances

I will be performing in TRAVELERS at 59E59 Theaters in New York City May 10-13 with LOTNY (The Little Opera Theatre of New York.)

Purchase your tickets HERE.

There will be five performances and this is a fully staged production. Come out and see a magnificent piece of theatre!

Two rare chamber operas: one a tale of comic hypocrisy, the other a tale of pure devotion.

The Wandering Scholar is an amusing story about a young wife, a priest, a traveling scholar; and what the husband finds when he returns home.

Sāvitrī is taken from an episode in the Mahābhārata. It is the mythic tale of love to the lover, the child to the mother, the song to the singer, a wife to her husband.

Presented at 59E59 Theaters
59 East 59th Street, New York, NY

May 10 at 8:00 p.m., May 11 at 8:00 p.m.,
May 12 at 2:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m., and May 13 at 3:00 p.m.

Tickets available through Ticket Central
Tickets are $35 each

Gustav Holst (1874–1934) a British composer most famous for his orchestral score The Planets left a much larger musical legacy. Travelers presents 2 of his operas. The Wandering Scholar, is based on a book by Helen Waddell, and has a libretto by Clifford Bax. Benjamin Britten and Imogen Holst edited and created the chamber performance edition after the composer's death. Sāvitrī, features a libretto by the composer. Gustav Holst translated the story from Sanskrit himself, and the opera became a model for chamber opera in the 20th century.
