Leandra Ramm is pleased to announce her collaboration with renowned pianist and composer Robert DeGaetano for a private function at Steinway Hall in New York City this September to celebrate Mr. DeGaetano's CD release entitled Journey of Passion. Leandra will be singing selected songs with Mr. DeGaetano at the piano as part of a program of Robert DeGaetano's music. Although this performance is not open to the public, we look forward to the possibility of sharing a video of the program with you in the near future.

A (micro) history of world economics, danced October 11 - October 13, 2013

Created and Directed by Pascal Rambert
 In collaboration with Eric Mechoulan
 Conceived at the height of the European economic crisis, A (micro) history of world economics, danced explores our collective economic history over centuries. Created with and circulating around the lives of anonymous, locally sourced performers - a ballet of raw bodies share their own histories in the larger history of economics - tall, short, young, old, of different ethnicities and ancestry on stage, as one community, to make meaning of a crisis.
 A (micro) history of world economics, danced is co-presented by La MaMa, Performance Space 122 and the French Institute Alliance Française (FIAF)'s Crossing the Line 2013 Festival.

"This is a story about fear, humiliation, anger, and jealousy, all brought together because cyberspace made it possible. But most of all, this is a tale of revenge."
